

Who we are?

Mohair South Africa was established to assume the responsibility of developing and maintaining industry standards in order to ensure ethical and sustainable practices, and provide ongoing support for the South African mohair sector.

What do we do?

Mohair South Africa seeks to advance the mohair industry through international partnerships and alliances to enhance the production and consumption of mohair products. Our aim is to create sustainable demand and profitability for all role players from producer to processor, and from buyer to manufacturer.

MOHAIR

The Noble Fibre

A symbol of luxury

A RENEWABLE FIBRE COMMITTED TO SUSTAINABILITY

Uniquely resilient, durable and beautiful.

Often referred to as the noble fibre, Mohair is lustrous, resilient and has exceptional colour reflection.

Mohair is the fleece of the Angora goat, and it's one of the world's most beautiful, sustainable natural fibres. South Africa is the biggest global producer of mohair, producing approximately 50% of the world's mohair. Most of South Africa's Angora goats are farmed in the Karoo area of the Eastern Cape. Angora goats thrive in the Karoo, with its combination of hot, dry summers, cold winters and semi-desert vegetation. In the pursuit of perfection, their fleece has been refined through consistently high breeding standards and meticulous genetic selection.

Mohair is a versatile and luxurious fibre, offering more than exceptional beauty and luxury. The fibre holds a number of rare, natural qualities which makes it a versatile natural fibre.

The Mohair Mark

A symbol of excellence

The Mohair trade mark is a fibre identification symbol that Mohair South Africa has developed to indicate that your product contains only the finest mohair fibre. This consumer facing mark helps customers globally select products that contain natural mohair fibre, symbolising quality and to be treated with respect.

The Mohair Mark can be displayed on any product containing more than 10% of mohair and applied to all marketing material from swing tickets and labelling to websites and social media.

The Mohair Mark is the perfect compliment to the RMS certification to show mohair quality at its finest.

Sustainability

OUR MOHAIR JOURNEY

RMS Certification

The Responsible Mohair Standard (RMS) is an international, voluntary standard that addresses animal welfare, land management and social welfare on Angora goat farms, and ensures that all processing steps throughout the fibre's chain of custody are certified, from farm to final product.

Individual sites are certified by independent third-party certification bodies using annual audits. Material is tracked from the farms to a final product using transaction certificates, flowing the requirements of Textile Exchange's Content Claim Standard (CCS).

Innovation through traceability

Mohair South Africa partners with Oritain to verify the origin of 50% of the world's mohair.

Mohair South Africa's partnership with Oritain - a world leader in the use of forensic science to verify the origin of products and raw materials - demonstrates its commitment to sustainability and ensuring the highest levels of social and ethical production through traceability.
